

The Carbon Valley Area Consumer Report
March 2009
New Business Seeks to Help Home Sellers

Two area women have recently launched SpaceLift, a new business serving Weld and Boulder Counties and the Denver/Metro area. Lois Britton and Liz Lorentzen are certified home redesigners and real estate stagers.

“People are still buying and selling houses. The market is slow right now, so it’s more important than ever to give your house the extra advantage,” says Lois Britton, one of the partners. “When we stage a house, we help the seller see it from the buyer’s point of view. We’ll help you showcase your home so that it stands out from the competition—and sells faster and for top dollar!”

“We also offer redesign services—we can help you eliminate clutter or redesign a room you don’t know what to do with. We use your own furniture and accessories to bring new life to one room or to your entire house,” adds co-owner Liz Lorentzen.

Other services SpaceLift offers include:

- Design Ideas and Advice
- Paint Color Selection and Color Scheme Coordination
- Fabric Coordination
- Space Planning
- Lighting and Electrical Outlet Placement (for new construction)
- New Furniture Selection and Possible Placement Options
- Theme, Mood and Style Evaluation
- Staging Consultations
- Transition Redesign Services—Marriage, Divorce, Downsizing, Loss of a Loved One

Ms. Lorentzen has a Bachelor’s Degree in Architecture, is a realtor and has worked as an interior and space designer. Ms. Britton also owns a communications consulting business. Both have experience staging and selling properties. They recently moved to the Carbon Valley area and will provide services to the entire Denver/Metro area.

